FISITA

Office Profile were approached by FISITA to refurbish their offices close to Stanstead Airport. The client wanted to update their offices and give it a modern appearance and atmosphere which would be welcoming to both clients and staff.

FISITA is an international network for automotive engineers and represents over 200,000 engineers in 37 countries. The Stansted office is the organisations main office and is comprised of two floors. The ground floor had a welcome area, a kitchen and breakout space, general office space and a meeting room. The first floor had a small kitchenette, open office space and meeting room.

Both floors have an open plan work area. White desks with blue screen dividers were supplied with mesh back task chairs with breathable black mesh backrests. The white and black contrast helps to give the office a modern appearance. Cable trays were fitted to the underneath of all desks to ensure that the office appeared tidy and that all wires were neatly contained and not showing.
